THE UK SPORTS INSTITUTE (UKSI):

The UKSI delivers outstanding support that enables sports and athletes to excel. Since 2002, and over the last four Olympic and Paralympic cycles, the UKSI has evolved quietly and effectively into an organisation consistently performing at a world-leading level, contributing to over 1,000 Olympic and Paralympic medals. It is unlike any other organisation in high performance sport, with an unrivalled network of experts in their fields delivering people-first solutions to over 40 sports.

Our people, and our expertise, are respected worldwide and demanded domestically, which is why we have developed leading expertise in attracting, identifying, recruiting and developing talented performance professionals in sport. We believe there is no organisation better placed than the UKSI to deliver sports science, medicine, technology and innovation to high performance sport.

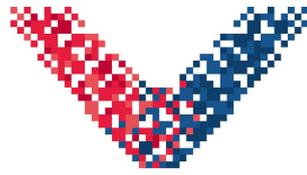

We have around 400 high performing and highly motivated staff and work in a complex environment of external stakeholder relationships. The UKSI sits in a pivotal role in the UK within high performance sport. On a day-to-day basis, our people provide outstanding support services to sports at our elite training centres. It is also at the heart of leading innovation across sports as well as being a key voice in the world of sports science and technical and medical challenges that will face our world of sport over the coming years; mental health, doping, safeguarding, concussion – to name just a few.

OUR MISSION

Our people, and our expertise, are respected worldwide and demanded domestically, which is why we have developed leading expertise in attracting, identifying, recruiting and developing talented performance professionals in sport. We also know the battle to be the best is a constantly evolving process, and in addition to existing performance challenges, British Olympic and Paralympic sport will face fresh tests and significant change over the next 10 years. We have a clear and joined up approach to our planning and aspirations for the future. Five broad organisational objectives – people, environment, health, performance and governance – that give rise to eleven strategic areas. All underpinned by a strong philosophy and culture.

- People at the heart of extraordinary performance, surrounding excellent athletes and coaches with excellent people.
- High performance environments where hundreds of athletes, coaches and EIS people can operate effectively – in our elite training centres around the country, and also within a supportive psychological and cultural environment.
- World-leading health support – crucial to athlete availability – across mental health, physical wellbeing, performance and female athlete health.
- Structured and embedded performance planning that employs world-leading innovation coupled with a culture of excellence.
- The highest governance standards, protecting sports and athletes through a long-standing commitment to ethical ways of working. We believe there is no organisation better placed than the UKSI to deliver sports science, medicine, technology and innovation to high performance sport. We have great confidence in our ability to deliver on our mission, and we look forward to working with you
